"Dear children! Pray in this time of grace and seek the intercession of all the saints who are already in the light. From day to day may they be an example and encouragement to you on the way of your conversion. Little children, be aware that your life is short and passing. Therefore, yearn for eternity and keep preparing your hearts in prayer. I am with you and intercede before my Son for each of you, especially for those who have consecrated themselves to me and to my Son.

Thank you for having responded to my call."medjugorie.org

Celiac Disease and Communion

We would like to address again the issue again and remind those who are interested to please contact the pastor or the parish office.

Although Church canon law requires that the host be made with wheat flour, which contains gluten, the Church makes it possible for most people with gluten intolerance to receive the Eucharist in a way that is not harmful to them. People with celiac disease or other forms of gluten intolerance have several options available to them: they may receive a small amount of a regular host; they may use a low-gluten host; or they may receive Holy Communion under the form of wine only. For those who cannot risk ingesting even a tiny bit of gluten, they can ask the priest to consecrate some wine in a separate chalice. Of course, a person who cannot consume a regular wheat host is always free to receive only the Precious Blood from the chalice; the Eucharistic Lord is entirely present in either the consecrated bread or wine
